Self Defense On The Street: Feel Safe Be Safe (Deadly Attack Survival Book 2)

Synopsis

Attacks on the street differ from most other dangerous confrontations as they usually involve a surprise attack. Whether the predator is a rapist, a kidnapper, a killer or a psychopathic thug, they will usually give you no forewarning of what they intend to do. They may hide behind a tree, a building or a car, or just seem to pass you on the street without drawing any attention to themselves but you must be ready. Even highly trained martial artists can be defeated on the street by an attack with no warning and no logic. Regardless of your training and experience, if you are suddenly knocked unconscious or abducted with no forewarning, you have no control over what will happen to you. This book, the 2nd in the Deadly Attack Survival (DAS) series is specifically designed to teach you how to avoid being attacked on the street, but if you are, how to cope with a surprise attack. Perhaps this book should have been entitled Street Survival or Street Smarts because that is exactly what you will learn. Self defense on the street may mean coping with two or even three attackers. You must learn to protect yourself when confronted with multiple attackers...you may have no choice if you want to survive. Self Defense on the Street follows the DAS principle of simple, direct, easy to learn, easy to perform. Most important of all, however, is to recognize signs of potential danger when away from home or in unfamiliar surroundings. Avoiding danger is always better than dealing with it.
